

Law & Gospel: A Nine Week Study for Groups and Individuals

About the Author Brandon Booth studied Philosophy at Hillsdale College and received an M.A. in Historical Theology from Concordia Seminary, St. Louis. He currently serves as Associate Executive Director of Ministry at Worldview Academy, a nationwide academic leadership camp for teens, where he has directed camps and lectured since 2002.

Description There are many misunderstandings about salvation, but fundamental to understanding it properly is seeing that God's word is divided into two parts: Law and Gospel. Both are good, but while God's law tells us what we ought to do it cannot give us the power to do it. The law reveals our helplessness in sin. God's gospel is the good news that Jesus has done for us what we could not do for ourselves, and that, through him, we can once again have a restored relationship with God.

Laid out in an easy to read, nine-week format, each short devotional unpacks a new dimension of this fundamental distinction in Scripture and helps the reader grow in faith in God's work of salvation through the grace of Jesus alone. Each week also includes questions for individual study and broader questions for group discussion. This flexible design allows for personal use for quiet times, or for use in youth groups and Bible studies.
