

Virtuous Women of Valor

Dive into Scripture and look at the good, the questionable, and the bad choices women connected with the military made during biblical times. Michal, Abigail, Bathsheba, Deborah, and other figures offer powerful and relevant examples for military wives to study and to learn from. While it is true that women face enormous challenges as their husbands serve in the nations armed forces, God always gives these unsung heroes the wisdom and grace needed to please Him. Ester Johnson grew up in Charleston, SC, and earned a B.S. in Home Economics and a M. Ed. in Secondary Education. As an educator she taught middle and high school Family and Consumer Sciences. She presently home schools and volunteers as a financial caseworker at a military non-profit organization in addition to her role as a family readiness advisor with her husbands unit. Her husband, Rob, is an active duty Navy chaplain serving with Second Marine Division. As a couple, they have weathered a yearlong deployment to Afghanistan, seven missile submarine patrols, and numerous workups, training events, and field exercises over the course of his sixteen years in the military. They have two boys, two girls, and two cats.
