

Dorcas And The Rainbow Corridor

This book is aimed at teenagers who seek adventure, suspense, unknown depths of mystery and a tale that races on from one cliff hanger to another. This is about Dorcas de Trevankey, pupil of Oskott the occult college hidden in the ethers above Tintagel. It is an ancient establishment held there by the roots of the Tree of Life. The Great Merlin used it to educate the boy king Arthur! The schools power is fading and it is getting harder for it to function and its in danger of crashing to Terra Firma very soon. In the meantime life goes on at the school while the world is oblivious to its presence. Dorcas has failed her werewolf module and is eager to find a vampire to observe for her Vampire module - after much searching she finds Murdin who is allergic to blood, loves garlic and cant fly! She feels a strong bond for him as he is as useless as she is. They work well together but the other vampires hate him so much he is killed. He returns as a ghost but then he is kidnapped by the evil Dreep. Dorcas is frantic to find him especially as she discovers she only has 24hours before his soul is sucked dry by the Dreep. The only way forward is to go down the forbidden rainbow corridor where she starts her quest to find Murdin - but is she powerful enough? The corridor leads her back in time and history. Her guide is the great Amethyst. She is trapped in the ethers when there is an attack on Amethyst from the vampire band that are hunting her. The endless obstacles and dangers put in front of her eat into precious time making her goal harder to achieve. Exhausted, will she triumph especially when her best friend Minty is taken by the Vampire band and why have the Mel-key wizards turned up?
