

Statement Made by the Secretary of War to the Committee on Military Affairs: Of the House of Representatives January 6, 1916 (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Statement Made by the Secretary of War to the Committee on Military Affairs: Of the House of Representatives January 6, 1916

The occasion is ripe for this Congress to perform a service of the very greatest importance to the people of this country. The attention of the people has been directed toward the subject matter and is now concentrated upon it. One of the fundamental reasons for the adoption of a Constitution for the Union was to provide for the common defense. Proper measures have never been taken to this end in time of peace. The people of the country are now insisting that such proper measures shall be taken. They are looking to those who represent them in the National Government to do that which is wise and proper. It is a great opportunity and a great responsibility, which can only be met properly by the fullest appreciation of the magnitude of the issue and of the imperative and vital necessity of wise action concerning it. The integrity of the Nation and its very existence may depend upon what is done in this matter at this time. This great opportunity will be lost unless a wise, sensible, and practical military policy is the result of the consideration and action of this Congress. I take it that the people have passed beyond the point of requiring further debate or reasons for the necessity for such action. I have endeavored briefly to set forth those fundamental considerations, showing such necessity, in the annual report submitted by me to the President, and shall not here repeat the same. I propose, with your permission, to address myself now to the question of the policy to be adopted. Before making specific recommendations it is necessary to deal with those general considerations which must be in mind before any proper determination can be reached. Besides continental United States, including Alaska, our military responsibilities embrace Porto Rico, the Panama Canal, Hawaii, the Philippine Islands, and the snudl force making part of the international guard of the railroad from Tientsin to Peking, in China. We have determined and announced that the sovereignty of the other Kepublics on this hemisphere shall renuiin inviolable, and must therefore at all times stand ready to make gooil our positii)n in this connection.About the PublisherForgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
