

The Future is Love and Marriage

This is a critique of the play written by Karol Wojtyla within the context of his two books, Love and Responsibility, and Theology of the Body. Written in the form of a postmodern meditation, the meta-ethical and meta-aesthetic critique indulges in polysemy and plurality. It is intended as a reading and re-visioning for students and couples preparing for love and marriage. It is also in preparation for the World Meeting of Families congress.
