

Third Annual Report of the Associated Committees: Of the Massachusetts Medical Society for the Prevention and Control of Tuberculosis, 1908 (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Third Annual Report of the Associated Committees: Of the Massachusetts Medical Society for the Prevention and Control of Tuberculosis, 1908 It seems appropriate in this year when the International Tuberculosis Congress is held in Washington to make a complete and somewhat detailed account of the active public work carried on by the medical profession of Massachusetts against tuberculosis. The work of the Associated Committees is no longer in an experimental stage, but is able to show important results both in a greatly increased interest and enthusiasm among medical men throughout the State and in a remarkable growth of associations and committees devoted to the active work of the anti-tuberculosis campaign. In the last year's report it was pointed out that the tuberculosis exhibit was an effective means of arousing a community to a degree of interest to open the way for the formation of Anti-tuberculosis Societies, clinics and classes. This work so successful in the previous year has been vigorously pushed forward during the seven months that have elapsed since the appearance of our last report. Fifteen (or more) such Societies have now been formed in the various cities of the State, and many places that have not yet organized Societies have committees in other Societies that have interested themselves in anti-tuberculosis work. Many places now have visiting nurses whose duties include the proper hygienic teaching of tuberculous patients and their families.
