

Chatty Cathy

Its no fun feeling like a cassette tape in an MP3 world. Cathy feels as if the big parade of life has passed by and left her shipwrecked and marooned on an island, but her island formed because she feels too old to keep pace with the march of time. She feels cruelly disconnected from the rest of the world. Being expected to master satellite television, cable boxes, DVDs, digital cameras, and computerized cars is bad enough, but when her grandchildren disappear from her life because she cant consider texting on a cell phone, the camels back breaks and so does her heart. Cathy takes a one-way trip to oblivion until a stranger on a train tries to rewire her point of view. Cathy may remind you of a senior citizen in your life, when a tug of war between young and old and yesterday and today takes center stage and tugs at your heart.
