

Reflections on the Work of Christ: A Mormon Viewpoint

The ancient creeds of Christianity define what it means to be Christian. However, there is one Christian group Mormons who claim that all those creeds are wrong and need to be revamped. Indeed, this is why many argue that Mormons are not Christians at all, despite their belief in Christ. Mormonism provides a remarkably different view of Christ and his work from that of normative Christianity, taking all the old stories and reinterpreting them based on the revelations received by Joseph Smith, the Mormon prophet. This book is about that reinterpretation. I offer it, not as the Mormon viewpoint, but as a Mormon viewpoint mine. It is written for both believers and non-believers in the hope that all will come away with a better understanding of, and greater appreciation for, the work of Christ.
