

Sixteen-year-old ghost hunter, Emma Hoffman thought that moving into an old Victorian was going to be awesome-- ghosts galore. Much to her delight, she discovers that the house is haunted—not by a ghost, but by a construct (a spirit created to be a servant). As she gets to know Marcus, the construct, he asks her to help him avenge his maker and find her killer. Emma's not too sure this is a good idea, she's a ghost hunter after all, not a detective, but she agrees to help him anyway. While trying to discover more information about the killer, Emma begins to have feelings for Marcus- feelings she isn't ready to admit. Then the sorcerer who killed Marcus's maker shows up at Emma's house with an insane plan to capture Marcus and absorb his power- Emma isn't having it. Marcus is hers. When the killer performs a spell that begins to steal Marcus's life force, Emma risks losing him. It's a race against time for Emma to figure out how to stop the sorcerer and his spell before Marcus fades away and disappears from her life forever.
