

Search and Mobile Marketing What Matters Most in 2015?: Be Found - Be Relevant - Be Engaging

If they cant find it, they cant buy it. Thats the bottom line of Search Engine Marketing. Needless to encourage, every internet marketer is aware of the almost limitless potential of reaching prospects through search engines. The power of search engine marketing is so immense that you dont even need to interrupt what people are doing in the internet in order to get their attention to your brand. Just make your brand available in the search and you have their attention. Google Marketing has been the center for decades when it comes to internet or online advertising. In fact Search Engine watch has been the one of the things that many search advertising and marketers is keep on watching every day, subscribing to the youtube channel of Google and Blogs for recent updates. One of the crucial changes to Google Search was the dramatic launch of the algorithm update called Pigeon. This updates has greatly affect the local search ranking prompting every marketers to reconsider their Search Marketing Strategy because the update has greatly affected the Google Search Ranking. But more than that every marketer should not become myopic and be distracted by Google Pigeon as there are other things that matters most such as the question of mobile marketing strategy, the effect of contract between search and browser companies. In fact in December 2, 2014, Yahoos search traffic in US has increased to 29.4% compared to 9.6 after signing a contract with Firefox 34.
