

R.I.P.: Best of 1985-2004

Horror tales of the deepest, darkest black. This omnibus collection of Thomas Ott's short shock-ending horror stories ?imagine E.C. Comics done with no words, and executed in an impossibly lush black-and-white scratchboard style?collects material originally published in three (now out of print) thin European style graphic albums during the 1980s and 1990s, plus a few extras. Presented in the same deluxe format as the now sold-out Cinema Panopticum (for which a softcover release is planned for 2011) and The Number 73304-23-4153-6-96-8, R.I.P. offers up an even dozen tales of murder, suicide, oppression, terror, mutilation, crime, marital strife, and nuclear annihilation. 144 pages of black-and-white comics
