

Carry the Day: Always aim at purifying your thoughts and everything will be well. (Da Bomb Book 12)

Have you ever wanted to create change in your life, but you have not been able to make progress? Perhaps you felt stuck where you were and you struggled to move forward? I have experienced this feeling numerous times in my own life. You may want to manifest a new job, your ideal relationship, or more money. You may want to change some bad habits or live with more self-love. No matter what it is, there is one key step that I see many people miss, and for years I missed it too. The step that people often miss is the creation of a powerful, beautiful and inspiring vision for changing their bad thoughts and focusing on what they want. Instead of dedicating their attention and focus to where they want to go, they instead get tripped up focusing all of their attention on where they are now. To create change, we need to take our attention off our old stories and our present situation, and use our imagination to focus on where we want to go. You will realize how important it is to think and behave differently when you start reading Carry the Day. You will have a light bulb moment and then cannot put it down.
