

The Big Eye of Summer

The stories in this collection are distilled from 60 years of mountaineering and arctic travel. This second edition adds 10 stories to the original 19. From a sojourn in a wartime bothy with machine-gun toting soldier-poacher-mountaineers to a 3 day 125 mile walk under the unsetting arctic sun; from a ride down a proto-A9 in a steam powered lorry, to a tale of munro-bagging by light aircraft; from a climb in the company of the Roman poet Horace on a days leave from the Elysian Fields to a consideration of the true meaning of the Flying Dutchmans day off from wandering the seven seas, the collection traverses a physical terrain from Scotland to East Greenland, a temporal span from 1944 to the millennium and a stylistic range from fantasy to arctic travel primer. At turns nostalgic, elegiac, rhapsodic, fantastic, philosophical, but always literate and lyrical, the book explores a new variation, if not an independent new line on the remote buttress of mountaineering literature.
