Excerpt: ... CHAPTER XVI. THE STABILITY OF THE VISIBLE HEAVENS. The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth the work of His hands.--Pa Xtx. 1. One of the most beautiful and sublime confirmations of this view comes to us from the science of astronomy. It is said in the prophetic song of Deborah, in the Book of Judges, that the stars in their courses fought for Israel. And so it may be equally said at this day, that the stars in their courses fight for, that is, testify to, the truths of the New Church. In what we are about to say on this subject we shall use the words of one better able to speak with authority in relation to it than ourselves. We quote the language of the late Professor Mitchell, the well-known American astronomer, and Superintendent of the Observatory at Cincinnati; and more recently remembered and lamented as a MajorGeneral in the armies of the United States, laying down his life in the service of his country. The following extract is taken from his popular work on the Planetary Worlds: So far then, as the organization of the great planetary system is concerned, we do not find within itself the elements of its own destruction. Alteration and change are everywhere found--all is in motion--orbits expanding and contracting--their planes rocking up and down--their perihelia and nodes sweeping in opposite directions round the sun,--but the limits of all these changes are fixed. These limits can never be passed; and, at the end of a vast period, amounting to many millions of years, the entire range of fluctuation will have been accomplished, the entire system, planets, orbits, inclinations, eccentricities, perihelia, and nodes, will have regained their original values and places, and the great bell of eternity will then have sounded one...
