

Words for the Journey: Thoughts and Affirmations for On-Ramping Women Returning to Work

Returning to work, or on-ramping, can be a time marked by exhilaration, anticipation, fear and anxiety sometimes all at the same time! Women returning to work after a significant time away face some challenges as they maneuver the on-ramps back to their careers and work worlds. The path is usually not a linear. Rather, women may encounter u-turns, detours and road construction along the way. Words for the Journey provides insight, information and comfort during this period of transformation. Whether a woman has always planned to return to work after time away spent caring for family, raising children, or tending to other personal commitments OR she's now in job search mode due to life circumstances that require her to do so, moving forward from a place of confidence, self-knowing and strength is empowering and important. Blending information about reinvention and job searching with the power of affirmations, Words for the Journey is an essential travel companion. Read it for yourself, share it with your friends and get ready for a megadose of enthusiasm and encouragement as you begin to explore your return to work possibilities.
